El Milagro de las Bodas de Caná

El Primer Signo de Jesús, el cambio del Agua en Vino ...

En las bodas de Caná, María nos enseña en qué medida, como Sacerdotes, pertenecemos a la Iglesia y cuán poco a nosotros mismos. Hasta ese momento, incluso durante el banquete, había sido llamada «la madre de Jesús» (Jn 2,1-3). Sin embargo, desde aquel entonces, se vuelve la «mujer» (Jn 2,5).

En Caná, la «madre de Jesús» le pide una manifestación de su papel mesiánico y de su divinidad. Nuestro Señor Le contesta que cuando haga un milagro y empezará su vida pública, entonces habrá llegado su «Hora», la Cruz. En el momento en que el agua, delante de sus mirada, «se convierte en vino», la Beata Virgen desaparece como madre de Jesús para convertirse en la Madre de todos los que en Él serán redimidos. En la Sagrada Escritura ya no se menciona ninguna palabra suya. Había pronunciado sus últimas palabras en un espléndido saludo de despedida que va a dejar sus ecos en nuestros corazones hasta el fin de los siglos: «Haced lo que él os diga» (Jn 2,5).

The First of Jesus' Signs at a Wedding in Cana

The changing of the water into wine leads us to a consideration of the New World of Jesus Christ. This is a world where the ordinary becomes extraordinary. It is a world where simple people become great spiritual leaders. It is a world where the least important in society is raised up with dignity to become the most important in the Kingdom. "My soul magnifies the Lord," Mary proclaimed, "as a result, all generations will call me blessed." If we allow ourselves to magnify the Lord, to be epiphanies of the Lord, we also will be blessed. That is why we have to be careful that we don't get so bogged down with the sham events of our materialistically depraved world that we miss the really important events taking place. Look around. Children and teens are proclaiming the presence of God. Adults are reaching out to his presence in others. We are being enriched by his love in our families. For the Christian, the extraordinary is ordinary. It is quite normal for the water of the world to become the wine of Christ. The reading is telling us that we live in miraculous times. Jesus is transforming our world through the blood of his cross.

We thank you to all volunteers who help us to take out the Christmas Trees and Decorations. God Bless you!

We Blessing the Water in baptisms, if you need Holy Water you can ask in the Rectoría it is free but if you can do a donation it will be welcome.
